

Hurricane Reminders

Although every storm situation is different, Tampa International Airport reminds you of these important points:

1. The airport is not a shelter; it is located in a flood zone. Do not try to come to the airport for shelter or use the airport parking facilities to store boats or RVs.

2. The airport is always open even though flights may not be operating; however, the airport is not equipped to provide food, water, cots or necessities for a large influx of people for extended periods of time.

3. If you are traveling or meeting an arriving passenger, contact the airline before coming out to the airport. Make any necessary changes to your itinerary over the phone or online to avoid getting stuck at the airport.
